My dear László,

Your letter dated June 17.th reached me here this morning. It followed me round Italy, where I spent most of the Spring and Summer, to find me here, where I have been staying during the last fortnight. I was wondering where you did not answer three letters I sent you but most likely you were not at St. John's Avenue. I have not given up my plan of a book devoted to your art and I hope we shall be able to discuss the matter at length as soon as I get back to London in November. Will you be there then? If not, could we meet in Italy or anywhere else?

Please drop me a line and give my respectful regards to Mrs de László.

Yours very cordially
F. L. Lippincott
