I read in the Times that Fulop had flown, with his cherished Colleen to the <sup>south</sup> ~~land~~ of the sun;

The winter winds whistle I shiver & moan, There is circuit <sup>to travel</sup> ~~to go~~ that work to be done:

I ~~know~~ <sup>hope</sup> that the Master on canvas will bring to this sun-bleached island the glories of spring.

To other words greetings to my dear Fulop & his wife: we thank you for the post card to kind to remember us & we are glad that you come Little worth words. Two copies of the Graphic came: Nancy said I know one is for me please thank M<sup>r</sup> de La Salle: I do so: I had read the article with interest, the writer whose name I should like to know is afraid of himself. He asks is De L. a classic & he says for the answer is yes but he does no-says. Of course I say so & I hope you are both having real rests & I know that with your eye for colour you can give pictures of spring in the south such as we northern born folk dream of. That would be more restful than pursuing the elusive golf ball which no man may master. However each man to his own vice care & let Madame take hers. I am delighted about Dr Henry Ph-D. Do congratulate <sup>him</sup> from me. I know his tutor Spens was disappointed about "his first" but he is certain he will go bang ahead when once he sticks to his line of work. From what you tell me he has done I gather he knows his line now. His success must be a great joy to you both.

Nancy had a glorious time at Wengen in spite of little snow: we look forward to seeing you all again & of course I will introduce you all to the golf club & we will smile
