Dear Mr. d'Laszlo.

It seems a long while ago since I saw you last, but I often see you in my mind's eye retracing the character of your sitters on canvas. Then when I want to be very near to you and your studio, I hire me to the galleries and look over the portrait of Sir Wm St. John. It was a rare privilege to be permitted to see this picture ~~made~~ from the blank canvas, and I live these few days in your studio over and over again. By the way.

Mr William's portrait improves every day.

Although I have been several times to London & back, I have not had sufficient time to come to Fitzjohn's Avenue; but maybe some day soon I shall have the opportunity and the time.

May I express the hope that your son has now completely recovered from the effects of his accident; and that the marriage of your other son will be as happy a event.
