Dear Sir,

I have just returned from Paris, and find amongst my letters a note from the Editor of the "Connoisseur" enclosing a copy of a letter you addressed to him concerning some remarks of mine published in that magazine this month about the present exhibition of the society of which you are President.

May I thank you for your appreciation of what I wrote and the trouble you have taken in acquainting the Editor with such pleasant views.

Believe me to remain,
Faithfully yours,

Hugh Stokes
