LONDON,

9th July, 1931.

On looking through my papers I have unfortunately discovered that I omitted to acknowledge the twelve Manzanilla glasses which you so kindly sent me through Mr. M. Misa. I much regret this oversight and wish now to thank you for your very kind thought, which I much appreciate. My wife and I regard your nice gift as a souvenir of those happy hours which we had the pleasure to spend in your home, of which I possess a cinema.

It fills us with sadness to think of the changes which have taken place in your country since our visit there.

In the meantime I have had my Exhibition in Paris, and it was a great disappointment to me that, owing to the unfortunate political situation in Spain at that time, I was unable to include the portraits of Their Majesties and their family.

With our renewed thanks, and best wishes from both of us to you and the Duchess,

Believe me,
Very sincerely yours,
