

LONDON,

2nd. January, 1931.

Dr. Quensel.

I wish to thank you for kindly sending me the illustrated magazine in which your splendid article, regarding your visit to me, appeared. I had it translated into English, and it gave me great pleasure to read that you enjoyed your visit to me and our little dinner party. If I remember rightly, you made no notes while with me, and it surprises me that you have been able to relate all the details of our conversation and all you saw while here.

I am very pleased to have this article among my numerous souvenirs, and I hope that, when you are again in London, I shall have the pleasure of another visit from you.

May I trouble you kindly to thank the publishers on my behalf for the copy of the same magazine which they were good enough to send to me.

With my very best wishes for the New Year,

Believe me,
Yours sincerely,
