12 Romantic Meeting.—Philip de Laszlo, who has been painting Royalty, and also lately did a fine portrait of Lord Beatty, met his wife in a romantic way. He was with a Canadian friend at a students' ball in Munich when two charming young English ladies had supper at the same table. He was so taken with one of them that he sought out their chaperone, and asked leave to call—and so the acquaintance began. Laszlo has a house in Finchley-road with a commonplace exterior, but inside is an Italian garden of beauty.
