A Laszlo Portrait. 912

IN MRS. ASHLEY, who was a Spencer Fownhope, is a sister of Lady (Hamar) Greenwood, the Government has a delightful political hostess. She has the charm and the beauty that Laszlo's portrait gives her, and is as familiar with the age in which her husband's ancestors lived as she is at home with the politicians of her own time.

After the wedding of Col. Ashley's daughter Mary (Lady Louis Mountbatten's sister) to Capt. Cunningham-Reid, M.P., Mrs. Ashley may be induced to write a history of Broadlands and its contents.
