At Carisbrooke Castle

Among the guests whom Princess Beatrice has been entertaining at Carisbrooke Castle are the distinguished artist Mr. de Laszlo and his wife. The latter was by birth a Guinness and a member of the well-known Irish family which founded the great brewery. She was brought up in Dublin and studied music in Germany, where at Munich she met her husband, who was an art student there. The fete organised at the Queen's suggestion and held at the castle during Cowes Week and attended by Her Majesty was a brilliant success financially, as well as socially, and will be a material help in the decoration and improvements being made, as a war memorial to the Isle of Wight men who fell in the War, in the ancient chapel of the castle. The chapel, which is dedicated to St. Nicholas, is now to have a stone altar, which the King and Queen, in association with Princess Beatrice and the Duke of Connaught, are presenting.

The Lure of the Lido

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Lang are spending a part of their honeymoon on the Lido, which just now is crowded by wealthy English and American people. Mr. and Mrs. Lang, who were married very quietly at Hampstead toward the end of July, have been motoring through France and Italy, and the lure of Venice and the Lido will now hold them captive for a few weeks. Mr. Leslie Lang is the artist who recently had a successful exhibition of his portraits and landscapes at the Goupil Galleries, and his bride was formerly Mrs. Scott-Kilvert, whose beautiful house in FitzJohn's Avenue, Hampstead, is not far from the residence and studio of Mr. de Laszlo. She also has a country house at Aldwick, near Bognor, where her two charming little children Derek and Pamela Scott-Kilvert are awaiting the return of their mother and her husband from the Continent.
