Cairo Season.

The season in Cairo is well into its stride, and the social calendar is almost as well filled as that of a debutante in the height of the London season. The High Commissioner and Lady Lloyd were present the other day at a gala ball given in aid of the Soldiers', Sailors', and Airmen's Families Association; a grand fancy dress ball is planned for Shrove Tuesday, and dance fixtures run on well into March. Lord Allenby sometimes patronises these gala functions, and with M. de Laszlo divided honours as the most interesting guest at a hotel dinner dance recently. The Aga Khan, Prince and Princess Joachim Albrecht of Prussia, Mr John D. Rockefeller, jun., and his wife, and Professor James Breasted are other visitors. Professor Breasted is a hardy annual among visitors in order to supervise the operations of the Oriental Institute in connection with excavation work.
