My dear Lucy -

We were glad & relieved to hear that plans had gone so well. I know what you must be feeling, not to speak of the patient himself - I do hope you really understand what I tried to convey to you last night. It is solely & purely from a national point of view that we think at present we better not make any innovations. As A. is national representative on the Tribunals, the world might take it amiss, in fact would, so easily prejudiced is it — How one would always like to act according to one's own personal feeling — The reason I am explaining all ^{this} is that we are both so anxious that you should not think we are holding back because of what people would say — that has no influence with us, as you know — it is purely C's public work which has grown & grown so much the last few months. All the same, he will risk all, if there should be any tight corners & he says you must feel we are here for you to fall back upon. All our sympathy as of old — & best of good fortune, may it come to you all now & forever.

Yours v. affectedly

Catherine

Kruglar would be quite different if feasible for you
